

Tuesday 6th March 2012

99p

Scattered, shattered, smashed and scrambled!

By: Erika, Kai and James

On Monday night, a young gentleman was having a quick rest on a wall outside Tesco but then...
Disaster struck!

Around 6:30pm, Humpty Dumpty, 54, was out on a walk along Eggsville Lane when he started to feel over boiled.

"I saw a wall that wasn't very tall so I went over to have a quick sit down," he explained. "And then to my sudden surprise I'd tumbled down and down."

The King's men saw the whole thing so they quickly galloped over to the foot of the wall where Humpty lay shattered and scattered.

Humpty Dumpty cracked on the floor

Sergeant Marley, 40, repaired Humpty as fast as he could. "It was quite hard but eventually I had to give up, there were too many small pieces that I could not find. Poor Humpty."

Humpty felt dizzy, sad and separated and his mind was a little scrambled.

"I felt like I had spun down from orbit but then I realised that I had not gone a mile from earth, not even three meters from it."

Humpty is now finally in hospital for his bits to be replaced and will be coming out in 4 months time.